STUDENT DESIGN CHARRETTE

Optimisation of Biodiversity Conservation in an Urban Island State

15 - 17 JULY 2018

Biophilic City

How can the love for nature start at our doorsteps? How can we be sensitive and preserve the existence of biodiversity in planning new towns?

Future Resilience

How is the landscape designed to be resilient in the face of increasing urbanisation? How do we adapt? How do we create landscapes that are adaptable?

Smart Nation

How does design in conjunction with technology invigorate and enhance the landscape experience? How does it reveal its complexities?

The IFLA Charrette of the 55th IFLA World Congress is an intensive workshop open to post-graduate students in Landscape Architecture and undergraduate students of the final year of Landscape Architecture programmes, or those attending a Landscape Architecture course included in other programmes (where University does not include a programme specifically identified as Landscape Architecture).

Following an application process by students, teams of 5-6 students will be formed by the Organising Committee. These teams will be guided by Singapore-based tutors in landscape architecture from both academia and practice. The charrette provides an excellent learning opportunity for students in an intensive period, working as individuals and in a team, and guided by experienced tutors.

The Student Charrette of the 55th IFLA World Congress 2018 is sponsored by the Stichting Nava-Polman Gerson Foundation and will be held in Singapore from 15th to 17th July 2018. The Charrette addresses 3 suburban sites in Singapore. During the charrette, students will visit the project sites and receive information on it and its context. The Charrette is hosted by the International Federation of Landscape Architects (IFLA) and organized by the Singapore Institute of Landscape Architects (SILA), in collaboration with the National University of Singapore (NUS) and the National Parks Board (NParks).
